ROOSEVELT IS THIS?

A GREAT error that is being committed by the administration is making this the president's war. This was again demonstrated when Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, exhorted the people of Ogden Saturday evening to subscribe to the Liberty Loan. In the course of his remarks he said respecting his chief:

"This I ask you in the name of the president, who sits alone in the White House, meeting from day to day the problems of conducting the greatest enterprise upon which this country has ever been engaged. His is the master mind of the world; he is the leader of liberal thought the world around. Place in his hands the power to make the world safe for democracy."

An eloquent tribute this, such as are being made by other cabinet members, to the one who gave them office, coming from men who are endeavoring to instill into the minds of the people that President Wilson is not only the man behind the gun, but the gun itself. It comes with bad grace from Mr. Lane to implore the press of the country to back the administration, all with equal loyalty, when it was he who attempted to have the Republican press thrown into the discard by refusing it a penny's worth of patronage.

No, this is not the president's war, nor the administration's war, but the people's war. If Roosevelt were in the chair there would be no occasion to implore for financial support. There would have been no conscripting, and only one note would have been written. The people would have flocked to arms and by today their arms would have been laid down and permanent peace would have come to the world.

MAKE PLANS TO BEAUTIFY.

THE unsightliness of many mining camps is due to absence of the home instinct which binds people to agricultural communities, where their parents were born and where their children will die. There the roof tree sends its roots deep into the ground to defend itself against the storms of centuries.

Mining camps are more transient than farming neighborhoods and their inhabitants do not generally consider them as permanent abiding places, but that should not deter them from rendering their abodes as home-like as possible, nurturing lawns and flower plants, planting trees and covering their homes with trailing vines.

As the season wanes we will miss the leaves and blossoms that adorn some—but too few—of the dwellings in Tonopah. As the lawns lose their radiance and the trees are denuded of their foliage, let us plan for next season and enter upon a scheme for greater adornment. It is not as it was in the wild boom times, when camps were founded in a day and deserted in a night. Mining is becoming a more permanent industry. If unsightliness gives place to beauty now it will be enjoyed for many years.

PATRIOTISM AND PRUDENCE.

THAT the first Liberty Bond issue was oversubscribed was due to the efficiency, strength and enthusiasm of the drive made by patriotic men and women and particularly to the zealotism of the press of the country, which gave millions of dollars' worth of space to the cause, neither receiving nor asking a particle of compensation.

The second drive is now on and even better results are expected, for the people have come to realize the tremendous import of this war and the effect which the Liberty Loans will have in bringing it to an early and successful conclusion. They have two other reasons for taking up the loan so quickly and one is the fact that these bonds are subject to no taxes except those of a special nature, while all other forms of property must be subjected to heavy licensing and taxation to meet the enormous expense to which the government is subjected, thus giving the bonds a relatively higher rate of interest when compared with other investments.

TONOPAH HAS SILVER CLOUD.

MARKED improvement in the affairs of Tonopah has taken place in the past few weeks, presaging that the coming year will be one of great material prosperity for the camp. Silver has reached heights above that for decades past and the recent withdrawal of supplies, contemporaneous with the dollar mark period, ensure even better prices, caused both by the law of supply and demand and the probability of restoration of parity at the conclusion of the war. Attending this advance in the price of the white metal was the increase in wages, the second in a year, which gives the laugh to old H. C. O. L. The mines themselves are showing material improvement. Encountering the North Merger vein in the Extension was a notable achievement, while the long foretold showing in the West End ground is cause for rejoicing. Nearly all the mines in the district are adding to their reserves and among business men there is a growing feeling of optimism.

AVOID A FUEL FAMINE.

THERE is likelihood of a fuel shortage this winter on account of the use of all available transportation facilities by the government. A warning has been sent out by state and railroad officials to lay in plentiful supplies at the earliest possible date. In view of this condition, it would be well to note that within striking distance of Tonopah there are coal measures, from which extraction could easily be made. One shaft in particular on the estate of the Darns Coal company, near Coaldale, has exposed 2,500 tons of an excellent grade of coal. It could be taken out and delivered in Tonopah for $6 a ton and a lease could be secured on it on favorable terms. This, with other blocked out deposits near Coaldale, would make Tonopah independent of outside producers during the winter and might avoid much physical suffering and financial distress.

OF BENEFIT TO MANKIND.

THE oil discoveries in Wyoming are among the most valuable developments of recent years, coming at a time when scarcity of fuel threatened and when the supply of gasoline became vastly less than the demand. Ignoring prospect, which sometimes do not tell the truth, and boom newspapers that are frequently carried away by their honest enthusiasm, The Bonanza has talked with people who have visited the fields, but who are not interested in any of the properties. They agree in one particular, which is that the oil deposits cover an enormous acreage; there being only two counties in Wyoming in which petroleum has not been found. The fact that this oil has a paraffine base and yields a large percentage of gasoline is the brightest side of the whole story. Inasmuch as Nevada is a large consumer and not a producer of petroleum and its products, the Casper discovery should be hailed with joy in this state.

Chicago girls, long famed for their big feet, must now share honors with the boys who enase their pedal extremities in white socks.

Income reports must be made promptly. Nothing doing here.

Remarkable Luck.
 In Gold Hill, Nev., in 1877, one of the mining bosses—Tule by name—had trouble with some of the laborers in his mine. One night three of them attacked him in a barroom. Two of them planned him down, while a third stood over him with a revolver. The muzzle almost touched his stomach. Once, twice, three, a fourth and a fifth time the weapon snapped. Tule closed his eyes. Each moment he expected to be his last. The disgusted ruffian threw his disappointing weapon on the floor with an oath and, joined by his aids, left the place. Tule wiped the cold sweat from his brow, mechanically picked up the discarded weapon, went to the door and fired off every charge, remarking that it was just his luck.

GIRLS WHO DISAPPEAR.

Tragedy of the Thousands That Sink Into Oblivion Yearly.

Police statistics of New York city show that at least two girls disappear from home every day in the year. They vanish into oblivion. Soon they are forgotten, but the heartache of the mother left behind is never stilled. It will ache on through the remaining days of her life.

And what becomes of the girls who disappear? That is a problem that we will not attempt to solve. We only know that they are swept away by the great whirlpool of life.

The federal statistics furnished by the bureau of vital statistics show that 50,000 persons disappear each year. They vanish into oblivion. A greater proportion of these are young girls. The men who disappear turn up sooner or later in most cases, but the girls, as a rule, are forever lost. Having cut away from their social ties, having burned their bridges behind them, these disappearing girls abandon usually all thought or hope of returning and become isolated members of the social colony of which they once were members. They prefer to struggle on as best they can.

It is one of life's tragedies—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

It is a Private Company, but Acts as the Nation's Banker.

The Bank of England is not, as most people think, a government institution. It is a private company, but reaps a good profit by acting as the nation's banker. The remuneration paid to the Bank of England for the management of the national debt was fixed in 1900 as a yearly sum of the rate of 625 per million pounds and at the rate of 400 for every million pounds above this amount.

Before any of the government money that goes into the Bank of England can be spent a certain procedure has to be followed. First of all an order signed by the king and countersigned by two lords of the treasury has to be forwarded to the comptroller and auditor general of the exchequer and audit department. Then the comptroller hands an order to the treasury authorizing the Bank of England to debit the exchequer account and credit the account of the paymaster general, who makes all payments on behalf of the various departments.

Afterward the comptroller scrutinizes all the accounts paid to see that the money has been spent in accordance with the wishes of parliament—Westminster Gazette.
